

The HealthMPowers Champion Award was established in honor of HealthMPowers' founders, E. Andrew Isakson and Mary Johnson. The award recognizes individuals who “go the extra mile” in promoting, supporting and enhancing health, nutrition and physical activity in their school to create a healthier school, as well as healthier students, staff and families.

Founded in 2000, HealthMPowers has served 348,576 students in 244 schools across Georgia and has worked to motivate and empower those who develop the policies and programs needed to improve and maintain a healthy school environment. During this time, improvements in student health knowledge and behaviors have been realized, along with improvements in staff wellness, school health programming and health policies. These successes were achieved through the dedication, support, work and leadership of champions within HealthMPowers participating schools.

We encourage you to ACT NOW AND NOMINATE a deserving teacher, administrator, parent student or other health advocate from your school or community in hopes that they might be recognized and honored for dedicating their time and talents to improve the health and well-being of others. HealthMPowers realizes that empowering health within an individual or school does not happen without great people leading the effort. This requires change agents who are dedicated to making a positive difference in their school and community. The nomination may be based on a single, significant work or the culmination of multiple works.
